

Machine Learning is a subset of Artificial Intelligence.

Supervised learning uses labeled data to train models.

Classification predicts discrete categories.

Regression predicts continuous numeric values.

Unsupervised learning discovers hidden patterns in data.